

Here is another irate citizen deeply concerned about the dangerous power granted to large MEDIA COMPANIES. The FCC must use its power as a REAL WATCHDOG and act in the interest of the public in controlling the self serving and democracy weakening actions of Sinclair Broadcasting and other media giants. Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for their profit and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
